THE PLAY DAY BOOK;
OR, STORIES FOR YOUNG FOLKS.

ILLUSTRATED BY FRED M. COFFIN.

One vol., 12mo, cloth, extra. Price $1 25.

"Here are four or five stories told in Faerie's crisp, lively style, original and entertaining."

—Buffalo Courier.

The author of the greatest mass of humorous verse ever collected, is pronounced the most amusing book in existence. It has run rapidly through four large editions, and is now in its second volume.

"A capital magazine in every respect. It is destined to make with the best now published." —N. Y. Evening Post.

"We rank it among the choicest periodicals of the day."
—N. Y. Mirror.

"It is conducted with taste and ability. Its illustrations are decidedly superior to any magazine, without exception." —Boston Transcript.

"It is most elegantly illustrated, and in this respect has outstripped all other publications in this country." —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Its original and classic articles are of great interest, and its style that throws all the three-dollar monthlies entirely in the shade." —Fort Madison (Iowa) Argus.

"It exceeds Haynes in the beauty of its illustrations, and in the interest of its contents." —Clyde Tribune.

"It compares closely, if indeed, it does not exceed, the best of our present monthlies." —Scientific American.

"It is far superior to any magazine." —Patriot and Times.

"As an evidence of its merits, a friend to whom we showed our copy immediately subscribed for six copies."

"It is the most entertaining periodical published in this country." —Middlesex (Mass.) Journal.

With the present enlargement, increase of price, and reserves at the command, the publication continues to be the most popular monthly in the country. THE DAY present the January number to the public, asking for a fair examination and an unbiased criticism.
